

Mask Fitting

With the emergence of the infectious respiratory disease, SARS, in March of 2003, health and community care organizations across the country have had to make the development and implementation of respiratory protection programs a priority.

McMaster University's medical program requires all medical students to have a mask fitted to their individual specifications.

The CSA standard requires a fit test every 2 years. McMaster RMM #311 requires that re-training be done annually.